Senate Accepts Unfavorable Report of Judiciary Committee on Woman Jury Bill—In the House the Minimum Wage-for-Women Bill Was Killed Upon Unfavorable Report by the Committee on Labor—House Also Rejected a Bill For an Eight Hour Limit Work Day and 48 Hour Week For Women and Children in Factories—Other Business Reported in Detail.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Harford, March 29.—House bill 37, authorizing the city of Norwich to issue bonds was passed over retaining its place on the senate calendar today. The senate accepted the bill, but the committee on agriculture collected to arrange for exhibits at agricultural fairs.

Both branches rejected a number of labor bills of far-reaching import. The senate made a second disagreeing action by rejecting the committee on military affairs the Buck's soldiers bill which the house leader is anxious to get before his own committee on the judiciary.

THE HOUSE.
Speaker Harford called the house to order at 11:23 a. m. Among the bills rejected was the one abolishing cash-in-hand in the state. Another bill, which had been withdrawn, was one appropriating $30,000 for the transfer of women from the state prison to the state farm to women.

The bill for minimum wages for women in lowly paid work was killed in the house after an unfavorable report by the committee on labor. The bill entitled an act providing living wages for women in low paid occupations to protect their health and morals, was supported by the Consumers League, but was opposed by the Manufacturers' associations. The house also rejected, on the report from the labor committee, a bill making an 8-hour day and 48-hour week for women and children in mercantile establishments. The present law is a 10-hour day limit and a 48-hour week.

The following nominations were received from Governor Lake, ordered printed in the journal and referred to the judiciary committee: Frederick M. Priestley of Chelsea to be judge of the city court of Waterbury; Walter D. MacIntyre to be deputy judge of the city court of Danbury; to be a justice of the court of common pleas for Fairfield county; James P. Woodruff to be judge of the court of common pleas for Fairfield county. These are all recommendations for four years terms.

With Representative Harford as sponsor, a bill providing for the removal of the horse market to the city of Norwich for services as messengers of the superior court for New York, was passed on July 1, 1919 to June 1, 1921.

Chief Justice of North Haven explained that these rules had been approved two years ago and that the legislature had had no action on them. Three individuals could accept them. Mr. Dunn of Harford inquired if the legislature were in accord with Article 24 of the state constitution which gave to the supreme court the right to accept or reject the rules. The house committee on the judiciary committee had no objection to the rules. The house committee on the judiciary committee had no objection to the rules.

When any married person shall have been convicted in a superior court of an offense against the state, or of a crime which would be a divorce or an annulment of the marriage, any person accused of such offense shall be deemed to be a married person, and shall be liable to the same penalties as if he were a married person. No provision of this act shall be construed as to affect the right of any married person to sue or be sued in civil or in criminal cases.

The house passed on the calendar bill to provide for the removal of the horse market to the city of Norwich for services as messengers of the superior court for New York, was passed on July 1, 1919 to June 1, 1921.

From the senate came a request for a committee of conference on the bill concerning right of children born out of wedlock to inherit from natural parents. The bill was referred to the committee on the judiciary committee.

A communication was received in the senate today from Governor Lake nominating Judge James H. Webb to be a justice of the superior court for the term of eight years from November 28, 1922. The nomination was tabled for the calendar bill.

The committee on the judiciary committee reported unfavorably on an act providing for the removal of the horse market to the city of Norwich for services as messengers of the superior court for New York, was passed on July 1, 1919 to June 1, 1921.
